

included in the daily reckoning.<sup>14</sup> Careful analyses of total lipid intakes in the 1952 to 1954 period indicated that this averaged about 10 gm daily (Table

Table 3.—Duration of Disease cases are analyzed in two ways. First, those actually able

- Allison
- o Müller
- » Kolb
- Alexander et al
- Swank, Low Fol Diel

AVERAGE

Fig 5.—Course of multiple sclerosis. Data for present curves were obtained from Allison's 40 cases, Alexander et al's 554 cases estimated from trend of points shown in Fig 3 of

SWANK, LED

12      16
Years of disease

Neurological grade

0,1

•*

	Graae	%
1	0,1	82
2	2,3	//
3	4	//
4	6	7

1 2

10  $\frac{j}{15}$
Years of disease

20

25

Fig 7.—Influence

Table 5.—Mortality for Treated

Table 6.—Relationship of suspect the later more optimistic survival rate<sup>19</sup> which is also charted in Fig 4. Severe and continuous nervous tension, a frequent accompaniment of military life, has a deleterious effect on multiple sclerosis. Perhaps the conditions for selection (90 days of military service

fat

cular permeability theoretically would allow toxic surface active materials to invade brain tissues and unwrap myelin sheaths. Demyelination and

